Earthquake Ruins: Sendai Arahama Elementary School

Course S1/S2/S4/S5

Arahama Elementary School is where tsunamis came up to the second floor as children, faculty, and neighborhood residents evacuated to the roof top during the Great East Japan Earthquake. The building has been preserved and the scars of the tsunami can be seen in the interior. The threat of tsunamis can be seen through the videos and photos, etc. that are on display.

Sendai 3/11 Memorial Community Center

Course S1/S5

The Sendai 3/11 Memorial Community Center is a place where the wisdom and lessons learned are passed on to the future and the world through people's memories and experiences. In addition to learning about the damage from the earthquake, participants can observe activities such as displays and workshops through which people pass on their thoughts and feelings to future generations.

Minami-Gamo Wastewater Treatment Plant

Course S3

The Minami-Gamo Wastewater Treatment Plant suffered devastating damage from the tsunamis following the Great East Japan Earthquake. As it was an essential infrastructure for the lives of people, efforts were made for early recovery and to "build back better" the facility which was reconstructed as an energy efficient, future oriented facility with a low burden on the environment.
